TRACKS TO BE ELEVATED. How Chicago Proposes to Solve the Grade

Gossing Problem.
From the Engineering News. The most radical "grade-crossing bill" ever enacted is the ordinance which passed the Chicago city council February 24, by an unanimous vote, requiring all steam railway companies within the city to elevate their tracks upon viaducts, the work to begin by July 1, 1893, and to be completed by January 1, 1899.

The ordinance divides the area of the city into three districts, the first comprising the area bounded by the Chicago river, Lake Michigan and 12th street (the central business district); the second an area about ten miles from ing the remainder of the city. The ordinance provides that in the first district the work of provides that in the first district the work of constructing the elevated viaducts shall begin by July 1, 1893, and be completed by January 1, 1895. In the second district work must be begun by July 1, 1895, and be completed by January 1, 1897. The railways covered by the ordinance are all freight or freight and passenger tracks operated by steam power. Rail ways carrying solely a passenger traffic by other motive power than steam are not included. The Illinois Central tracks north of 52d street on the lake front and thus across O street are also exempted from the requirements of the ordi

Suitable devices must be provided for carrying of storm water or drift and leading it to the city sewers. The railways have the sole right to the use of their structures for transportation and for telegraph, signal and telephone wires, but the city of Chicago is entitled to the free use of the structure for its police, electric light and telephone wires so far railway's use of the same is not interfered with.

Prior to the construction of any elevated railway in accordance with the provisions of the ordinance plans and specifications must be presented for approval to the commissioner of public works, and must be followed in its prose-

The elevated roads may be operated with such motive power as the com-panies choose, but such power must be "fully equipped with all devices calculated to render prevent the discharge of sparks and cinders. The passage of this ordinance is the result of of placing every one of the present surface tracks upon elevated structures were estimated the sum involved would be a staggering one.

As a matter of fact, however, the ordinance does not require this. It merely requires that the present surface tracks crossing streets or highways shall be removed by the time stated and it remains for the railways to determine whether issue of bonds to February 28 was $2,403,000. they shall be permanently abandoned and where e-evated structures shall take their place. Surface tracks which cross no streets, such as switching to manufacturing establishments, packing houses and storage yards, are not interfered with. Cars can be transferred from the elevated to the surface tracks by hydraulic lifts INCREASED TRAFFIC CAPACITY.

The traffic capacity of elevated tracks, where cars can run at full speed, with no interference from street crossings, is so much greater than less in building two, four and six-track struc-tures for joint use protect and facilitate train movement by complete block and interlocking systems. It is also to be remembered that the construction of steel or masonry via-ducts is not essential. In the thickly built up part of the city they will doubtless be used, as here the space undern ath the railway tracks will command good rentals, but in the outlying Wyckoff, the Leechburg, Pa., physician charged with complicity in the attempted robbery of the laining walls can be used with plate girders at street crossings and the cost need not be ex-cessive. Of course, even with these qualifications, a beavy outlay must be made by the Chicago railways; to offset it they have the rentals of the space beneath their tracks, the revenue from the sale of large tracks of very valuable real estate in the heart of the city, which will be set free, by the concentration of traffic on the elevated structures, and finally the saving of the present vast sum now paid annually for the mainte nance of crossing planks, gates and watchmen at the grade crossings within the city limits, numbering over 1,500. The expense due to damage suits growing out of the present fre-quent grade-crossing fatalities is another item which should not be overlooked. Doubtless the railway companies will resist in the courts the enforcement of the ordinance and a long fight will precede its going into effect. It is the enforcement of the ordinance and a long fight will precede its going into effect. It is interesting to notice, however, that at least one prominent railway officer, Mr. J. D. Springer, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, has studied the matter in a broader light, and in a letter to our contemporary, the Rail-way Age, expresses the opinion that the elevasolution of the grade-crossing problem for both the railway and the city.

----OPPOSED TO MR. McLEOD.

Mortgage Bondholders Who Want Him R moved From the Receivership. The committee of the general mortgage bond holders of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad held a meeting in New York yesterday afternoon. It was decided to invite bondholders to send in their names and the amount of their holdings. The committee on Wednesday sent a letter to the Pennsylvania company for insurance and annuities, the trustee of the bonds demanding that it should compel the Reading company to comply with the agreement made when the mortgage was negotiated and put 10 cents on each ton of coal mined into the sinking fund. The trustee was also reday sent a letter to the Pennsylvania company the sinking fund. The trustee was also requested to move for the removal of President A. A. McLeod as one of the receivers of th

Reading.

It is charged that since he had been president
Mr. McLeod had not set aside the 10 cents on each ton of coal produced and furthermore,
had used up the fund during the two years had used up the fund during the two years early the following morning. At that time she was a teacher in the Comstock school in New York, but was not known to be married, and Harris was first called upon to explain the death at an inquest before a jury composed entirely of physicians and chemists. As the result of a letter sent to the president of the medical college at which Harris was a student suspicion was aroused.

It is charged that since he had been president Mr. McLeod had not set aside the 10 cents on each ton of coal produced and, furthermore, had used up the fund during the two years when Austin Corbin was president. A letter when Austin Corbin was president of the trustee of the general mortgage, saving that the interests of the bondholders would be fully protected.

was received yesterday from the counsel for the trustee of the general mortgage, saying that the interests of the bondholders would be fully protected.

Samuel S. Hollingworth, representing the Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities, came into the United States court in Philadelphia yesterday and stated to Judge Dallas that his object in comstated to Judge Dallas that his object in com-ing into court was not to make any application in regard to the demands made on the com-pany by the New York bondholders of the Reading railroad, but he was there to ask that the court would not do anything in any applica-tion that might be made in the matter without first giving notice to the Pennsylvania Com-pany for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities.

Judge Dallas said that that would have mos likely suggested itself to the court. He, how ever, thanked Mr. Hollingsworth for calling at Real Estate Matters.
